

VoltDelta Resources LLC includes 5 business units delivering remarkably engaging On Demand Customer Care to enterprises and service providers, residential, business and government contact data for Direct Marketing, Credits and Collections, and IT Outsourcing to leading organizations around the world.

VoltDelta business units provide communication, data, messaging and support services across a wide range of hosted and premise-based offerings including:

Data processing equipment and computers; software for operator services systems used for directory assistance and speech recognition; telecommunications and information systems equipment, namely, computer systems comprised of personal computers used to receive a call or request from an end user and then switch said call or request to another service or another user

Advertising services, namely, telemarketing; professional business consultancy, namely, devising advertising concepts for information systems purveyors, and advertising concepts intended to be incorporated into advertising by others and transmitted over the internet to promote e-commerce and e-business for clients; telephone directory assistance and business directory information services; providing directory assistance and directory information service databases; telephone operator services; telephone directory services for national and international numbers and addresses and directory information; operation of telephone and information switchboards for others; data processing services; data management services for use in telephone directories and business directories, providing an online classified telephone directory database featuring business and consumer information; telephone directory assistance featuring residential, business and government listings available to telecommunications providers

Repair and maintenance of computer hardware, computer systems and computer networks; Providing repair and maintenance services and information for computer hardware, computer systems and computer networks; information technology infrastructure support services, namely, troubleshooting in the nature of repair of computer hardware

Telecommunications services, namely, call, messages, and email forwarding services, internet provider services, namely, rental of access time to global computer networks; technical consultancy in the field of telecommunications; rental and leasing of telecommunications equipment for operating directory inquiry and information services with operator support; rental to others of operating external telephone switch equipment; professional message forwarding services; technical consultation in the field of telecommunications

Computer services, namely, electronic data processing (EDP) consultancy on the creation of network pages, creation of software programs for data processing, electronic data processing (EDP) consultancy, namely, consulting with others about how to use electronic data processing in the telecommunications field; computer database design services in the field of directory assistance and information databases; design, configuration and installation services in the field of computer software used in directory assistance and information services; data mining services; information technology infrastructure support services, namely, computer monitoring service which tracks hardware performance and application software performance for others, troubleshooting computer software problems for others, computer software administration for others, namely, installing computer software for others, computer system administration for others and maintenance and repair of computer software; repair and maintenance of computer software, namely, providing information technology programming and systems consulting services; providing repair and maintenance information for computer software; design, configuration and installation services in the field of directory assistance and information services; providing directory assistance and information service databases